Cuban Deplore Regime's Stand

Cubans have the feeling that they have been sold out, not by the American people, but by the American government, a delegate of the Cuban Revolutionary Council said at the observance of the 51st anniversary of the Republic of Cuba.

This statement by Frank Bartes in Gallier Hall Monday night through a typographical error was changed to read "not only by the American people, but by the American government" in The Times-Picayune Tuesday.

Preceding this statement, Bartes praised the United States for its unity with Cuba in the conflict of 1898 to free Cuba from a foreign power.

"But now, in contrast with the 1898 conflict, we stand alone," he said. "That is why we have a feeling of frustration and sorrow."
